EVERYONE IS DIFFERENT! We understand the uniqueness and difference in each individual's financial knowledge and circumstances, and cultural backgrounds.

Our initial target audience are INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS. We will facilitate the workshop with a basic level of English, complemented by bilingual volunteers. Considering the large percentage of international students (118,498 student visas were issued from Asian countries in 2007) that are coming from Asia, we believe Chinese Mandarin would be the main alternative language in our workshops. In addition, to deal with cultural barriers, the workshop facilitators will follow an informal code of principles in relation to cross-cultural awareness.

On the other hand, the workshop will be conducted in a team-based structure, in order to facilitate group discussions and co-learning between students and volunteers. This structure will promote inclusive learning between team members as well as the sharing of different individual experiences.

Furthermore our workshop also functions as a research forum in which we can further understand the needs of the people we intend to help and essentially modify our program to create a better financial literacy experience.

People we look for!

- Self-motivated
- Interested in “hands on” experience in educating/coaching others
- Multi-lingual/Bilingual (preferably, if not, we still need you!)
- Interested in other cultures
- Willing to develop leadership
- Innovative and possess “think out of the box” attitude

We are looking for students who are genuinely interested in gaining knowledge of financial literacy and educating others in the process! Commitment and Attitude is the key!

"Recruited volunteers will be given free formal financial literacy training from the MoneyMinded organisation or the current SIFE team (depending on conditions), in which they will then use their knowledge to assist the creation and modification of the FQ experience!"
