Exhibition Booths

The annual national Australian Council of Social Service (ACOSS) Conference brings together hundreds of people working in social policy and the community service and welfare sectors for a two-day event to discuss a wide range of issues impacting on the sector in Australia.

Who is ACOSS?
ACOSS is the peak council of the community services and welfare sector. Established in 1956, ACOSS is the national voice for the needs of people affected by poverty and inequality.

ACOSS members consist of national peak organisations of consumers and service providers (such as Jobs Australia, Homelessness Australia, National Shelter, Carers Australia), national religious and secular welfare agencies (such as the Salvation Army, St Vincent de Paul, UnitingCare, Anglicare, Mission Australia, and the Smith Family) as well as low income consumer groups (such as National Council for Single Mothers and their Children and Australian Federation of Disability Organisations).

The non-profit sector represents an expenditure of $7.1 billion annually and delivers services to over 3 million disadvantaged Australians.

Who will attend the Conference?
The wide range organisations represented at the ACOSS Conference provides an ideal opportunity to get your message across to key decision makers and to community and social workers.

Participants include representatives from ACOSS national member organisations, members of the State and Territory Councils of Social Service, other ACOSS member organisations, Federal, State and Local governments, academics, as well as representatives from community organisations and people with an interest in social justice and equality.

At the 2008 Conference there were approximately 600 participants each day.
